Abortion bans. Attacks on access to birth control. Cruel efforts to prevent immigrants from seeking reproductive health care. Women's health and reproductive freedom are under siege and are an important topic in Hawai'i and across the country.

Join ACLU of Hawai'i, Planned Parenthood Votes Northwest and Hawai'i, the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists Hawai'i, Guam and American Samoa Section, and the Hawai'i State Commission on the Status of Women for a free, public discussion on current policy trends in reproductive rights and abortion access Friday, June 1, 2018, from 6:15 p.m. - 8:00 p.m. at the Impact Hub Honolulu, located at 1050 Queen Street in Kaka'ako. Learn more about the fight to uphold and advance reproductive freedom in Hawai'i and the nation - including an update on an ACLU case challenging federal restrictions that unreasonably limit access to Mifeprex, the abortion pill.

Leading the panel are two visiting speakers: from the National ACLU's Reproductive Freedom Project located in New York, Attorney Julia Kaye; and from the Island of Kaua'i Dr. Graham Chelius, a family physician whose concern for his patients' access to reproductive services led the ACLU to file a legal challenge to the Food and Drug Administration's rules on Mifeprex - a case whose outcome could affect the entire nation.

Ms. Kaye and Dr. Chelius are joined by Mateo Caballero, ACLU of Hawai'i Legal Director. KITV anchor Diane Ako will moderate.
